A massive open online course (MOOC) called TOX-OER (Learning Toxicology through Open Educational Resources) has been developed and implemented under a Erasmus+ Action KA2 program. This project, led by the University of Salamanca, has been carried out by a consortium of professionals with different expertise (Toxicology, Chemistry, New Technologies, Pedagogy, etc.) belonging to Higher Education Institutions of 7 countries. Its development has involved the use of pedagogical, technical and scientific resources and can be accessed at <https://toxoyer.com/>

A book (Spanish-English edition) has just been edited to share the experience of this project development, which include personal visions of the authors that could be useful as a guide for others with a similar goal: to improve OER in the field of Toxicology.

The book was entitled "Challenges in Open Educational Resources: The case of TOX-OER MOOC"

Contents:

1. Introduction
2. TOX-OER to promote Open Science in the field of Toxicology
3. MOOC Pedagogy
4. TOX-OER MOOC
5. MOODLE as a MOOC platform
6. TOX-OER content development
7. Visualization in a MOOC. The TOX-OER experience
8. Teaching using a MOOC
9. TOX-OER scenario
10. Quality control in a MOOC
